Bright, Breezy Paragraphs Telling The Happenings in the Village on Mahoning's Southern Border.

By CLARENCE BAKER

WE SHOULD SMILE

The thing that goes the farthest toward making life worth while is that which costs the least and does the most, is just a pleasant smile—the smile that bubbles from the heart that loves its fellow men. It will drive away the cloud of gloom and coax the sun again. It is full of worth and goodness, too. It costs nothing to give, and it is worth a million dollars and it doesn't cost a cent. There is no room for sadness when we have a cheery smile. It always has the same good look—it's never out of style. It serves us on to try again when failure makes us blue—Such glimpses of encouragement are good for me and you. So, smile away, folks understand what it is worth. It's worth a million dollars and it doesn't cost a cent.
